GENERAL CONDITIONS

Development Standards: The construction must be completed in accordance with the applicable development standards, drawings and specifications or description of materials submitted with the application except for changes that have prior written acceptance of the Rural Housing Service (RHS) or its successor Agency. Exceptions for changes may be submitted for prior written acceptance by the RHS.

Code Compliance: All construction and improvements must comply with any applicable codes, regulations and zoning ordinances.

Title Clearance: The seller will on the date of loan closing deliver title that is good and marketable in fact and certify that there are no outstanding debts that may result in a judgment or material man's or mechanics' lien against the property.

Title Curative Costs: Any costs involved in any title curative action will be paid by the seller.

Taxes and Assessments: The seller also will pay any taxes, assessments or similar charges due as of the date of loan closing.

Commitment Term: The commitment shall expire one year from the date specified above unless extended in writing by the RHS.

Cancellation: This commitment may be cancelled by the RHS if construction of the dwelling is not begun within 60 days after commitment is issued. It will also be cancelled if construction is not in accordance with approved plans, specifications, or the applicable development standards.

Change of an Area from Rural to Nonrural: If the area where the property is located is changed from rural to nonrural, the commitment will be honored only if the property is sold to an RHS applicant whose application was received by RHS prior to the date the area was determined to be nonrural.

Conditional Commitment: RHS will, if the construction is completed in accordance with the terms of the conditional commitment, approve the house as suitable for a rural housing loan and will, if and when funds are available, provide a loan to an eligible, qualified applicant to buy the house. The agency will not, however, assure that a qualified buyer for the home will be available or reserve funds for the loan unless the conditional commitment and the loan are approved at the same time and funds have been obligated by the Finance Office. The commitment applicant's selling price if the dwelling is bought and financed with a Rural Housing loan will not exceed the commitment price.
